

9. If you catch your dog in “the act” in the house say “STOP!!” Do not let him finish but pick him up and carry him straight outside to the proper area. Wait with him until he goes and then praise.

10. Keep a chart of exactly what the dog does, including accidents, and at what time. You should discover a pattern and be better able to plan his schedule.

11. Do not drag the dog over to the accident to show and scold, punish or rub his nose in it. If you did not catch him in the act, say nothing. Put him in another area where he cannot see you while you clean it up. Remember, you are his leader, not his maid. Do not let him see that your sole purpose is to look after, care for and clean up after him.

~~~~~

Make Dog Ownership A Rewarding Experience

- Every dog needs Training
- Training is essential if problems are to be avoided or eliminated.
- Training is the key to a wonderfully positive and rewarding relationship.

How to Get Started:

- Every dog is seen and assessed individually with the owner prior to starting any of our programs

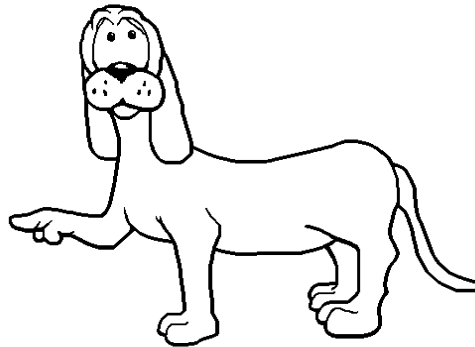

- All programs are pre-registered and pre-paid.
- Classes are kept small for more personal attention.
- Private consultation and instruction offering the owner many additional options and benefits, available by appointment.

Don't be disappointed - Call for an appointment today.

Phone: 905-797-2855

On the web, visit us at:

www.tsurodogtraining.com

This way to “Tsuru Dog Training”

This pamphlet is part of TSURO DOG TRAINING's “Puppy Education Program” series.

Discover the Pleasure of Owning a Well Trained Dog

House Training

ROGER HILD

Canine Behavior Consultant

Tsuru Dog Training

visit our web site:

www.tsurodogtraining.com

RR 2, 7051 Donaldson Rd., W.,

Port Hope, On., L1A 3V6

(905) 797-2855

Peterborough(705) 740-6186

Oshawa(905) 432-8313

member C.A.P.P.D.T.

'House-Rules' Training

Many new puppy owners make the mistake of assuming that once "Toilet training" is complete they are finished with the much larger task of "House training." Put quite simply, house training is teaching your puppy how to behave in the house. In addition to toilet training, it includes such things as teaching him the house rules, boundaries and expectations. If you don't want him eating the furniture, being a nuisance at the front door, stealing from the table or counters, you will have to teach him all these things as part of his house training program. It is also very likely that you will have to remind him of the house rules from time to time.

A basic rule to follow is to never give the puppy too much freedom. Begin by restricting him, when he is unsupervised by a responsible adult, to areas where he cannot get into trouble or learn any "bad habits." When you are able to watch him, take him with you into these restricted areas, watch him closely and teach him how you want him to behave. You need to be in the position where you can immediately put a stop to any undesirable behaviour. To make this process easier, you can leash him up before taking him into areas he is normally restricted from and as he demonstrates calm and controlled behaviour, you can begin taking the leash off for short periods of time.

Toilet Training

One of the most important house rules is "The floor is not to be used as a bathroom!" The secret to successful toilet training is to focus all your efforts on maintaining his perfect record, preventing him from making that first "accident" for as long as possible. If he already has been going in the house, resolve to keep him from making the next mistake. Decide to follow the principle of confining the dog when you are not able to watch him. By confining the dog you also confine the problem.

The role confinement plays in training is to help the puppy learn to hold "it." This is because he does not want to soil his "den." Equally important will be rewarding and praising him every time he gets it right. Rewards let him know this is the place you want him to go, he got it right and you are pleased with him.

When you are home and able to keep an eye on him, the puppy can stay with you in whatever room you are in. A good house rule for the whole family to follow is, whoever has the puppy with them in the house is responsible for his direct supervision. If he makes a mess while under your supervision, it's his accident but it is your mistake. Whoever he is with also has the responsibility to get him outside as soon as he has to go.

The following program usually works quickly and is the standard program we suggest:

1. Have your veterinarian do a stool check for worms. Parasites not only would effect his health but would completely interfere with toilet training.
2. Feed at set times. Remember, what goes in has to come out and if we know when it went in we will have some idea when he will have to go. During this period of toilet training, do not vary his schedule even on weekends, and do not "free feed."
3. No food or water for 3 hours prior to bedtime.
4. Watch the stools - if they are loose, you may be overfeeding.

5. Take the puppy out on a regular schedule and stay out with him. Praise and reward him when he goes and let him know how pleased you are. Take him out after he eats or drinks, when he first wakes up from a nap, after he has been playing or when he begins to act agitated or sniffs in a circling pattern.

6. When you take him out, go straight to his toilet area and stand there. Do not walk with him or pay much attention to him until he goes, then praise and reward him. This will teach him that this is the time and place to relieve himself. Once he "goes," you can go for a walk together or he can have some house time under your supervision.

7. If he does not go within ten minutes take him back inside and place him back in the crate for fifteen to thirty minutes then try again. This will help avoid the scenario where you have the pup out for forty-five minutes and he does nothing until you bring him inside and then he promptly uses your carpet as a toilet.

8. Clean accidents with white vinegar and water or with a cleaner designed for urine odor. Do not use an ammonia-based cleaner. Such a cleaner would attract your dog back to the spot.

Tsuro Dog Training

Roger Hild,

R.R.2, 7051 Donaldson Rd. W., Port Hope,
ON. L1A 3V6

Phone: (905) 797-2855

Peterborough (705) 740-6186

Oshawa area call (905) 432-8313

*professional member I.A.C.P.

*member C.A.P.P.D.T.